

- Topic: This webpage will guide the user through several tools in Adobe Illustrator. The audience is listed in the "Audience" bullet point.
 - Audience: My webpage is designed for anyone to view, including possible employers, students, and family members. The purpose is to show how to perform the task given in the "Topic" bullet point.
 - Colors: Background colors are Dark blue and light blue
 - Text color: Mostly Black, a few whites, a few re-used background colors, others are red, green, yellow, pink, and peach
 - Text: Typeface – Verdana & font family – Bold
 - Bitmap and Vector Images: Bitmaps are the smaller sized images. Vectors are the large images, except for the trace image, which is actually a bitmap. I used the following:
 - Images I've collected from my Art 260 (Intro to Graphic Design) course plus the image for exercise and it's traced image
 - Illustrator image at the top of the page. I got it's original image from Google.
 - Sound: <https://soundcloud.com/illeniumofficial/odesza-always-this-late-illenium-remix-1?in=d-quade/sets/international-gloving-league>
- Animation: The animation will showcase the tools and exercise. It should also show where the technique and exercise is located on the webpage.
 - Skeuomorphism: icons I could invent would be a bitmap image of the tool that is being explained
 - Viewing: The user/viewer will need to see some sort of text or image related to whatever tools or exercise they are about to view
 - They should see that the image is not available if something went wrong with the image
